Jury Convicts Jimmy Hoffa On Charges Of Jury Tampering

CHATTANOOGA, TENN. (UPI) — The Federal Government finally got a conviction against Teamsters President James R. Hoffa Wednesday when a jury found him guilty on two counts of jury tampering—crimes punishable by a total of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

"It was unfair. Of course we will appeal what do you think?" snapped Hoffa after hearing the verdict.

The tough little boss of the nation's largest union has been indicted on six different charges over a seven year period, but today marked the first time the Federal Government has been able to hammer out a conviction.

'Class B' Playoffs To Replace Forum

The regularly scheduled forum series will be interrupted Thursday while the Utah Class B High School Basketball championships are held in the Smith Fieldhouse.

BECAUSE THIS is a playoff tournament for the state championship the winners of the South Rich and Emery and Pleasant Grove and Green River games compete at 10 a.m. BYU students are invited to attend the game but must purchase a ticket for $2 with or without activity cards.

The Forum series will continue Feb. 12, when Dr. Albert Burkholder, holding a Ph.D. in International Relations, will address the student body.

BYLAWS of the Teamsters International Union provide for the removal of any officer convicted of a felony—such as jury tampering—but the union wasn't expected to take any action against Hoffa until he exhausts his appeals.

Immediately following the conviction Hoffa was taken into technical custody in lieu of a $75,000 bond, which was posted and executed later in the day. Hoffa was then released.

The Teamsters boss was greeted by hundreds of curious-looking people and associates as he stepped free from the Federal Building under bond. He was in technical custody about two and one half hours.

ASKED for further comment, Hoffa called the verdict "a railroad job in my opinion" and said he pitted "those who do not have the funds to go to appeals courts."

Judge Frank Wilson gave attorneys 10 days in which to file for a new trial.

Hoffa and he would not resign as president of the world's largest union.

"Despite what you like to think . . . the members will be behind Hoffa all the way," he declared.

THE JUDGE held further hearings on the motion during the afternoon, but finally recessed the hearing late Wednesday, saying it would be resumed Thursday morning.

Despite Neal's initial reaction that Hoffa's conviction was "not a joyous occasion," the prosecutor appeared in a jovial mood by the end of the action-packed day and was handing out cigars to his associates.

In addition to the $75,000 bond demanded for Hoffa, the court also demanded $25,000 for the release of Campbell and $20,000 each for Kings and Parks.

All the bonds—totaling $140,000—were posted with U.S. Commissioner H. Arnold Morgan, who executed the papers for the release of the men.

Utility Conduit . . .

Pipes Go Underground

Some of BYU's winter construction is going underground.

Insulated conduit housed in a protective tie is being installed from a man hole west of Fierlape Halls to the new residence halls, being constructed west of Wymount Terrace.

THE HEATING of the residence halls will be transported to the 900 East location by high-temperature water in the insulated pipes.

Most of the campus buildings is heated by the high temperature water which can be heated as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit in pipes that can carry up to 400 pounds pressure, according to mechanical engineers.

The excavation will house an electrical duct bank, enclosed in a two foot square concrete envelope. This duct bank will carry the cables for the hall's high voltage power, automatic call system for fire and burglar alarms.

SEPARATE TRENCHES have been dug for the heat and power lines where the topography and telephone cables.

competition for space with the present gas and sewer lines limit the working area.

The same technique is being used in the Smith Fieldhouse area where a molded light weight concrete aggregate insulated conduit is being extended to accommodate construction in that area.

A two per cent calcium chloride mix that accelerates the setting of the concrete is added to the concrete. The early poured concrete is housed in "tents" with butane burners that keep the air temperature warm enough so that the fresh concrete does not freeze before it sets.

Tripods For Election Offered For Posters

Election poster tripods will be available only at the AMS office between 8-9 a.m. and 4-5 p.m.

These tripods must be returned to the office during the above hours and checked out by a junior AMS council member.

THE INDIVIDUAL who checks out the tripods will be held responsible for them if not checked in.

A 25 cent deposit will be required for each tripod and this deposit will be refunded when the tripod is returned.

Stubborn Blaze Burns Mattress

by Nancy Stephenson
Feature Editor

A mattress was expelled for smoking day evening when Leslie Powell, a human math major from Bountiful, found cox springs of her bed on fire when the action of a lamp, plugged-in shortly after 11 p.m., ignited the bedding.

EXCITEMENT RAN rampant when hit the flame with a pillow failed to extinguish the bedding.

When Hallie Carey, a sophomore roomer from California, ran in the Bowen Hall apartment, she found her roommates tearing and forth between the bathroom and room in a water brigade.

Seeing that this was obviously ineffectual, Miss Carey calmly filled a large pan and ran it at the bed. Unfortunately, she set the fire and drenched another roomer.

THE FIRE smoldered on.

Finally the girls picked the mattress up squeezed down the hall with it to their end-floor balcony where the dorm father, Vin Rose, emptied a fire extinguisher on the fire, was unimpressed.

AS A LAST resort, the burning box was hurled over the balcony to the snowy ground in front of the hall where snowed all night, ignoring the snow fell sporadically.

Gloria Ray, left, Charlotte Nilson, Karole Pierce and Hallie Carey, are seen examining the charred remains of a box spring. It caught fire in a Bowen Hall apartment as the owner, Leslie Powell, studied atop it. The burning object smoldered in the snow Tuesday night.

Campus and Comment Controversy

● Congratulates Cheerleaders

Dan Editor,

I'd like to congratulate the cheerleaders for the way that they handled last Saturday night's game and in particular for the few words of sportsmanlike spoken at half-time concerning the negro player incident of a couple of years ago.

I've been waiting a long time for the cheer leaders to publically make an announcement on what should be our attitude towards athletes from other schools and finally in the last home game of the season instead of leading the attack with P.A. remarks criticizing the referees, they came through fine. At the beginning of last Saturday's game, four of five gentlemen from the "Y" were sitting close to the playing floor and were yelling names at the negro player in a foul way. A team in general, along with several remarks against our own team members as well as all their wind they never let out a peep when it came time to do an organized cheer. At any rate, after the cheerleaders were quiet. I hope the cheer leaders realize their importance in setting the attitude of sportsmanship and use their power from the beginning of next year's season.

Orchestra Rates Mixed Notice

By L. Williams

Last night's concert by the BYU Symphony Orchestra proved several exciting moments and a few disappointing ones. Easily the high point of the evening was the performance of the gifted pianist, Gladys Cladstone. Her vigorous but sensitive playing of the C minor piano Concerto of Mozart left the orchestra hand-propped to match her impressive technique and interpretation, particularly in the slow movement.

The concert opened with a rather uneven and listless performance of Schubert's Rossini Overture. However, the orchestra redeemed itself in the second half of the evening with a spirited reading of Symphony No. 5 of Beethoven.

This extremely difficult (and tremendously exciting) work has been that composer's most-played symphony—probably because of the skillful alternating of lyric melody, compelling rhythm and vigor—but it is seldom well played by amateur orchestras.

Elephants Inbibe Too Much

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, (UPI)—Harassed game rangers in South Africa's famed Kruger National Park are trying to cope with 1,750 tipsy elephants.

The elephants have been dangerously drunk for the last five weeks from eating the yellow fruit of the Marula trees which dot the game reserve.

Elephants, it seems, are rarely seen drunks but their alcoholic habits already have put one man in a hospital and their annual binge has another week or two to run.

The Marula bears fruit for six or seven weeks each year. It has a cloyingly sweet, very rich flavor. Africans use it to brew a particularly potent beverage.

The elephants have a simpler process. They lumber from tree to tree, stuffing the fruit down their gullets. It ferments at their stomachs and in no time they are loaded.

They wander red-eyed through the park, waving their trunks playing from side to side and looking for a place to vomit.

An African railway worker named Judas is recovering in a hospital from his encounter with a drunk elephant.

Judas was riding his bicycle, a bit unsteady himself after drinking marula beer with some friends, when he came upon the elephants. They, too, had been imbibing of the sweet fruit.

The herd leader placed Judas from his bicycle, tossed him into a bush and flattened the bicycle with one stamp of his massive foot. Then he calmly ate the nearby marula tree and munched more fruit.

At the N.P.S. later, near Kruger National Park headquarters, a South African farmer narrowly escaped injury when his cow bartered at a passing elephant bull, which was under the influence. The bull galled the rider at the animal, then charged.

The farmer ran into his master's grass hut for safety, followed by the indignant elephant.

Months later, the satisfied bull elephant lurches off into the brush, with a complete grass hut around his neck like a collar.

Lost Painting Discovered

A Daily Universe article was helpful in locating a valuable painting missing from BYU's art collection. Volcanic Cones by Hayward Dixon was reported to be located in a staff member's office after he recognized the picture in Wednesday's Daily Universe.

"I was surprised when I saw the Daily Universe this morning," said Orrin H. Jackson, Administrative Officer.

THE PAINTING has hung in Mr. Jackson's office, D-196 Smoot Administration Bldg, for several years. A few years ago an art student in-charge of the BYU's art collection contacted staff and faculty members as to what type of painting they would like in their offices. Mr. Jackson, a western landscape admirer, choose the $1,000 painting "Volcanic Cones." He had admired it when it was on display in the Joseph Smith Bldg.

Newsman Sharpen Questions

UPI—Washington newsmen and women need to sharpen their questions and to improve their tactics and strategy if the presidential news conference is to flourish as it should.

President Johnson's first news conference in the elaborate form and size to which the institution has become accustomed took place last week. Except for a carefully prepared and newsworthy statement read by the President at the outset, the news conference was pretty much a bust.

THE PRESIDENT was able to deal with most of the questions with pleasant little flights into the area of sweet news and light in which he frankly recognized the seriousness of a given situation but permitted himself hope for improvement.

Not once, for example, did a questioner have or seize the opportunity of asking a follow-up question. Follow-up questions are essential if a newsmen is to break through official reluctance to answer the tough ones.

The simple facts of the situation are that the newsmen and the official, be the President or lesser fry, are opponents in a news conference. If the official parries or otherwise avoids direct answers to direct questions, the official wins the conference. If the reporters compel answers, they win the public are the winners.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON won last week's news conference. There is no doubt about that. One questioner was self-defeating, as for example when he was asked to appraise the political impact of the Bobby Baker case. Johnson replied with that one, saying that the Baker Case was before the Senate where the proper action would be taken when all of the facts were in.

The general nature of the question practically invited the general nature of the Johnson response. The Baker Case could have been opened up wide at last week's news conference by picking Bobby Baker up right where the president left him when he discussed that famous stereo at the informal news conference some weeks ago. The President said then that he saw nothing unusual in receiving such a gift from Bobby Baker because the Baker and Johnson families occasionally exchanged gifts.

THE NEXT AND OBVIOUS question would be: What gifts, Mr. President, did the Johnson family give the Baker family, and when?

There would follow questions about the cost of the gifts what gifts other than the stereo the Bakers may have given the Johnsons and so on. The follow-up question technique is essential to obtaining news from a formal news conference.

Such questions as those would be difficult to avoid by reference to the senate. The president could, of course, refuse to answer any question.

The president was asked what he meant in his California speech by placing great emphasis on his warning that outsiders who interfered in Viet Nam were playing a dangerous game.

"That's what I said and that's what I meant," was the substance of the President's reply.

THERE WAS NO FOLLOW-UP on that either although it is obvious that the President's reply did not in any way illuminate or clarify a situation about which the public is increasingly confused.

The function of the presidential news conference should be the information—not the confusion—of the public.

Smiles Don't Cost

It's one of a number of fascinating pastimes that can be executed within the scope of college life. It's called, "smile at people you don't know and you'll be captivated by their reaction."

I'M NOT REFERRING to ethics, altruism or "the road to more successful public relations." I'm talking about the pure undiluted fascination with the human personality.

There are precarious prices one must pay for this tendency. Some statements by many shocked individuals are likely to go something like this: "What's the matter with you? Is he some kind of kake or something?" Or "Where did I meet him?" "What happens if he stops and I have to introduce him?" Or "What does she think she is some sort of Polyanna or something?" This of course all goes on inside the mind.

THERE ARE PRECIOUS rewards accrued by this talent to smile at complete strangers. It does take talent. Have you ever smiled at someone new, someone shy and not used to their surroundings? Have you ever watched their faces as the emotions play themselves out in a number of possible patterns.

It's an art. You've got to watch the eyes and the cheek muscles. First surprise, then bewilderment, the start of a smile, then the fear to smile—as shown by the tightening cheek—and finally the exuberant hello, or the glowing countenance.

It doesn't always work that way, but that's what makes it a challenge. It takes tact and a certain amount of courage. I know I feel awfully silly when I smile—especially at close range—and all I get back is a, "well type of stare or glare."

One thing you had better do is smile with a "I love everybody" type of smile. You're in real strife if it's too personal, unless you want to be personal, but that's for real experts. The mortality rate is exceedingly high.

SOME REAL CHARACTER shows through in these situations. The individual can't help but show his or her own and his whole philosophy of life is made manifest by his reaction. You can really learn to like people.

Anyway, I like it. You'll never find it dull—I promise. The real problem is just overcoming any initial fear that might exist. You can't smile very interesting people this way. The trouble is, however, that you will often find yourself smiling at the right people, but at the most inappropriate times.

United Nations Approves Cyprus Forces

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The United Nations Security Council Wednesday unanimously approved the dispatch of an international peace force to Cyprus and appointment of a mediator to end the strife between the island's Greek and Turkish communities.

SECRETARY GENERAL U Thant immediately asked Canada, Sweden, Finland, Ireland and Italy to provide troops. Troops in the 7,000-man British contingent now on peace duty in the island also were expected to comprise part of the international force.

Castro Offers Water To Guantanamo

HAVANA, (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro offered Wednesday to resume supplying the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo with water, Washington promptly rejected the offer.

Castro told newsmen in a lengthy news conference at a foreign embassy that since the fishermen dispute had been settled, he was willing to start supplying water to the base again. The United States had been paying Cuba $16,000 a month for water. Two days after Castro ordered the cutoff, the U.S. announced plans for a $10-million program to make the base self-sufficient.

WHITE HOUSE Press Secretary Pierre Salinger, commenting on Castro's offer, said merely the U.S. government had decided previously to get along without Cuban water for the base.

In addition, the United States has dismissed an estimated 500 Cuban civilian workers at the base to keep their dollar wages—estimated at $5 million a year—from falling into Castro's treasury.

Half-seriously and half-jokingly, Castro said he personally backed Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater for the U.S. Presidency. Then he commented: "With his war platform, nobody can be elected."

Goldwater said he would send Goldwater a campaign contribution of "a few cents."

He told the foreign newsmen that Cuba is in a "very enviable commercial position" now. He said everybody wants to trade with Cuba because it is paying its bills and settling old debts to France, Holland, Spain, Italy and Britain. He ridiculed Venezuela's threat to stop trade with western countries dealing with Cuba. He said Venezuela sold them more than they buy "so the threat is empty."

Castro said he volunteered to discuss compensation with Britain for seizure of the Shell Oil Co. refinery in Havana because Britain "has maintained a decent attitude towards us." He praised the British for selling buses and spare parts to Cuba in defiance of the U.S. economic embargo.

House And Senate Increase Funds, Peace Corps Size

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—The House Wednesday overwhelmingly approved $115 million to double the size of the Peace Corps to 14,000 volunteers.

THE FINAL CONGRESSIONAL action authorized every penny they asked by the administration for the most popular foreign aid program.

A demand by Rep. H. P. Gross, R-Iowa, to cut the authorization by $20 million was defeated, 309 to 99. Gross said the Peace Corps should be withdrawn from Panama, Ghana and Indonesia—"countries not cooperating with us."

Beware The Jabberwock

—by Stan Hodge, Sports Editor

It's here—the final showdown, and the top four teams in the Western Athletic Conference Cage standings are separated by only one and one-half games.

New Mexico's publicity man, George McFadden, twisted Lewis Carroll's work in showing how tight the race is. "The time has come," the sports nut said, "to think of many things. Which team will be WAC champion; Gardner's, Watts', or Wulk's or King's."

If Lewis Carroll's walrus had been a basketball fan, he couldn't have found a better wonderland than the Western Athletic Conference where the wild championship finish is the kind of tea party that would make even the Mad Hatter shut up and take notice."

ASU Holds Greatest Edge

By the time this column goes to press part of the suspense will be over. At this time Arizona State, with only one game left, has the outside chance for a share of the conference title. A win over Arizona at Tempe Wednesday would give them undisputed possession of the 1964 Casaba Crown.

A loss, however, would throw it up for grabs with even a possibility for a three-way tie. New Mexico is the only

BULLETIN

TEMPE, ARIZ.—The looking glass which until now had mirrored BYU's basketball title hopes was shattered as Smith-ed the University of Arizona 72-69 at Tempe.

For ASU the victory meant at least a share of the crown. Only New Mexico has a chance of tying them yet—and it would take victories over both BYU and Utah for them to accomplish that.

The Sun Devils led at the half 35-30 behind the shooting of Joe Caldwell and Art Becker.

other team with a chance for a total championship. That, however, would take not only an Arizona State loss, but Lobo victories over BYU and Utah this week as well.

Commissioner Would Have To Choose

The Western Athletic Conference Commissioner, Paul W. Brechler, would have to choose a team to represent the WAC in the NCAA in the event that two or three teams (Arizona State, New Mexico, Brigham Young, or Utah) should tie for the lead.

New Mexico is already half counted out on that score, though, as they have four starters who are ineligible by NCAA rulings. The Commissioner more than likely will decide to send another team to represent the conference than send one which cannot play it's strength.

The Cougars, now under a full-head of steam have perhaps a better chance of knocking off both the Wolfpack and the Cowboys than the Scramblin' Utes from the institution to the north. The Redskins will be hard put to come back from the drubbing suffered at the hands of Arizona State last weekend.

Cougars Would Probably Be Chosen

If the Cougars manage to defeat both the eastern teams and should tie Arizona State for the title, BYU would probably stand a better chance of being selected for NCAA competition than Arizona State. My feelings for this is based upon several facts. First the Mountain Cats will be riding on a five-game winning streak (two of them on the road), second the Sun Devils competed last year, and third, the Cougars are slightly better statistically.

The Cougars have scored about seven more points per game than have the Devils. Even has two scorers ranked with the top ten in the conference, and the Devils have held their opponents to only eight fewer points per game.

War. 1964. Combatants: Cougars and Lobos. Battlefield: Johnson Gymnasium, Albuquerque. The spoils: Possible first or second spot in the hotly contested Western Athletic Conference.

THE LOBOS, who incidentally can take the title outright with two wins, have handled the Wattsmen once before this season and came out victorious by two points, 30-27.

Now with a full head of steam, and needing two wins for either second or first spot (depending upon the outcome of Arizona State-Arizona duel), chances are that the Cougars will avenge their previous loss to the Wolfpack.

IT WILL be a battle of the "grants" again, as Ira Harge and John Fairchild battle at center spots. Harge is carrying a 17.0 ppg average, and Fairchild a 20.6 overall average.

It will be a battle of the best and worst. The Cougars have the rating as the best offense and worst defense, while New Mexico has the best defense and worst offense.

CLAUDE WILLIAMS, starting forward for the Lobos is one of the leaders in the WAC scoring race, and will be on hand for the dual. New Mexico will play Utah on Saturday to round out the Conference. IFU will be at Wyoming. CONFERENCES being what they are, the WAC is perhaps the only major conference which will not be over until the last whistle of those last games.

Wyoming, conference doormat this year is not likely to leave the welcome mat out for either the Skins or the Cats. Both Utah and The Wattsmen have defeated the Pokes while the Wyoming crew were on the road, but in their own corner, they may prove to be the "horse (excuse us) of a different color."

NEW MEXICO scored what was probably its biggest, pressure-laden victory of the year when it outlasted the hustling Cowboys, 64-63, at Laramie. A missed lay-up in the final seconds by Wyoming's Flynn Robinson insured the Lobos of that victory.

At New Mexico, Head Coach Bob King is now readying his crew for an all-out, eleventh hour push against the Cougars. "It'll be a tough night," says King. "We can't afford to make a mistake against them, or they're going to be here after our hide."

The Wolfpack now sports an excellent 19-5 season record—one of the best in their history.

Wrestling Elite Bring Honors To BYU

church school ought to be
This was the reason
two undefeated wrestlers for attending the "Y" in an new outfit this week.
MOTOKAWA, who is wrestling matches in the States and Japan, has been by only four opponents be tangled with them on latter mat.
wrestled two years for high school in Yokohama, Jawhere he was persuaded by his mat coach, who saw Mac in All-Star competition on West coast, to come to the to wrestle.
PRESSIVE RECORDS in the U.S. and Japan have achieved by this friendly
from the Orient. In Ja-Mac was a member of the new All-Star competition on the National High School Chamption of his weight division.

1962 was a big year for the Contry Mac in the U.S. He won titles in every event that he entered including the Far Western-championship, National Youth Tournament, National AAU, and the California High School Championship.
IN THE WESTERN Athletic Conference Tournament last year,
Mac won the title in his division and has gone undefeated this season.
Mac is a sophomore majoring in love. He is twenty years old and loves Japanese food.

MIKE YOUNG, a handsome sophomore who hails from Idaho Falls, has stacked up an enviable wrestling record in both high school and college. In 90 classes on the mat Mike has only lost one and tied one.

While he wrestled for Idaho Falls High School, Mike won the Idaho State championship in three successive years. With two years of college competition nearly under his belt the young grappler has suffered only one loss and was tied once. Mike's 1964 season standing is 15-0-1.
THE YOUNG Idahoer received encouragement to attend the "Y" from BYU's assistant football coach, Earl Lindley, who was then football and wrestling coach at Idaho Falls High School.
To complement his rough and tumble mat tactics and his best for the slop slopes, Mike has a gentle side. Between studies and events he writes poetry to entertain his roommate.

Many Problems Handled By Y Counseling Service

by Sheila Carver
Copy Co-Editor

Contrary to the belief of many on the campus, student does not have to have a serious problem before he can take advantage of the Counseling Service.

The purpose of the Counseling Service is to "provide aid and assistance to students who need specialized help while they are attending BYU," stated Dr. Clyde Parker, Director of Counseling Service.

THIS APPLIES not only to students with serious problems but also to those having trouble with group living, vocations, classes and so on.

One such problem brought to the Counseling Service is that of career indecision, said Dr. Parker.

WHILE IN HIGH school a student is more or less informed as to his curriculum. He is supervised in homework, class attendance, and other matters which become routine. Once the student has left the close-knit realm of his supervisory superiors, he is faced with the dilemma of having to make these choices himself.

Many students have no trouble adjusting to this change. For others however, the change does not come so automatically.

THE STUDENT is met with frustration and discontentment. He is forced to take a good look at himself and ask himself: "What do I want to be in life?" "What do I want to make of myself?"

Dr. Parker pointed out that the Counseling Service has available many interest and ability tests, with the aid of their specialized personnel, a student may take the tests and after personal interviews can find where his interest and ability lie.

The Counseling Service, he remarked, can take a neutral stand not pushing for one field of study another. They have triumphs here concerning job opportunities in different fields, education can find fit particular and other useful information.

MARRIAGE POSES another problem for many students. The college atmosphere seems to be conducive to marriage, so students feel that they too, should be ready. Many are emotionally lacking even though physically they are ready. Others are afraid of marriage.

During this complicated phase of life, many students need outside, neutral help, he said. The Counseling Service is professional help to deal with such problems.

GROUP LIVING, getting along with roommates, is another problem area. Many who come to college are thrown together with people of differing personalities for the first time. They are not allowed to select their roommates and must learn to get along with them. Getting along with others is not only vital in college, but the remainder of life, he pointed out.

BYU Group 'Courteous' During Tour

The 105 members of the Cougar Marching Band came from 20 states and Canada. They are always at BYU's football and basketball games with Iron Marriot, Lee Yaggs, and Sue Davis, Chae Lake, Calif., as head twirler; and six freshman girls from Provo, the Brighamettes. Mr. Marriot has been Senior National Twirling Champion for four years.

THEY WERE HIGHLY praised by the Iron Horse Restaurant in San Francisco where the band had awards banquet during their trip to the University of Pacific.

The letter read: "We have in the past served quite a number of groups from various colleges and universities . . . your students were the most well organized party that we have ever had the privilege of serving."

"The members of the band . . . conducted themselves in a courteous and friendly manner. Their behavior was not only noticed by our staff, but commented on by a few of our steady customers. These students are fine representatives of the university."

THE BAND describes its trip as jazz sessions, pranks, and no sleep.

The football season saw the Cougar Band outclassing its competition with precision marching and music. During the shared halftime activities with USU, the Aggies band played only when in formation and had its music on the field at all times.

The Cougar Band played all their music from memory and seldom stopped playing even while doing their intricate maneuvers.

ASST. DIRECTOR Grant Elkington estimates that about 1,700 student hours are put into each half-time show. Last fall the band put on four shows.

This does not include the planning of every show, arranging music, nor the time the students spend memorizing the music.

During the football season each student averages eight hours a week band work for one hour school credit, said Mr. Elkington.

THE COUGAR Marching Band has been in its present organizational form since 1953 but the tradition stretches clear back to BYU Academy. It has reached its present position via transformation of the ROTC band and the BYU marching band.

The group is directed by Richard Ballou of the Music Dept.

Visitors View Catacombs On Tour

by Don Searle

Asst. Feature Editor

One of the out-of-the-ordinary attractions on campus is the archaeological museum in the basement of the Maser Bldg.

Dr. M. Wells Jakeman, who founded the Archaeology Dept. at BYU in 1946, is official curator. Guide through the museum is Asst. Curator Dale Berge.

In addition to the exhibits, Mr. Berge shows visitors the workroom where potteries are restored and the "catacombs" old storage spaces in cramped corners under the building. These are not open to all students.

But the part of the museum that is public has exhibits that command attention. Except for a small Egyptian exhibit, all the relics are from the New World. They are prepared for showing by Mr. Berge and Bill Barbosa, another asst. curator.

"One of the primary aims of the department is archaeology of the scriptures," commented Mr. Berge.

Thus, most of the pieces in the museum have been procured from Mexico and South America. One prominent exhibit features potteries from Aguascal, Campeche, Mexico, once thought to be the Book of Mormon city of Bountiful. There is also a plaster cast of the "Tree of Life Stone" found in Mexico near the Guatemalan border which depicts Lehi's vision of the Tree of Life. The American Southwest is heavily represented.

Pieces brought back by expeditions and donated by various people have swelled the museum exhibits. Commenting on the job of managing the museum, Mr. Berge said, "What we really need is a full-time curator." Dr. Jakeman has done much work on the museum, especially the "Tree of Life Stone", since being relieved as chairman of the department by Dr. Ross Christensen.

In the past, BYU archaeological expeditions have been sponsored by the BYU chapter of the University Archaeological Foundation and the BYU New World Archaeological Foundation.

These three skulls and the other artifacts in this display case are part of the BYU Archaeology Museum's exhibits from the Southwest. The skulls are all from the Utah County area and were gathered as part of work on Masters' theses according to Asst. Curator Bill Barbosa.
